Marie-Claire Greve | Photographer

For the bird's-eye perspective, Marie-Claire often takes her photographs from a helicopter.

Marie Claire Greve*; nature conservation photographer; Finalist BigPicture 2019 (USA); Winner reportage photography Festival International du Film et Photography Animaliers et Nature (2019); part of Anna Singer Collection.*

Curious by nature and not afraid to experiment with her camera, Greve often chooses unusual perspectives or angles for her distinctive compositions. "My personal preference is to work with anything that moves," she explains, "and to make the most of soft, evocative light to achieve the subtle tones that I prefer in my images." As well as the iconic wildlife of the African bush and savannah, Marie-Claire is also drawn to the more elementary features of the landscape, especially those wild places that have been shaped for centuries by wind and water.

There is also a philanthropic side to Greve's photographic art. In 2017, she launched Alliance for Nature, a foundation that aims to create a shift in awareness about the interrelationship between humankind and nature, and consequently the growing importance to protect the natural world we live in. Through her photography, she seeks to inspire and connect people of all ages and ethnicities, as well as organisations active in the conservation of Earth's precious biospheres, based on a philosophy of coexistence.

SALT

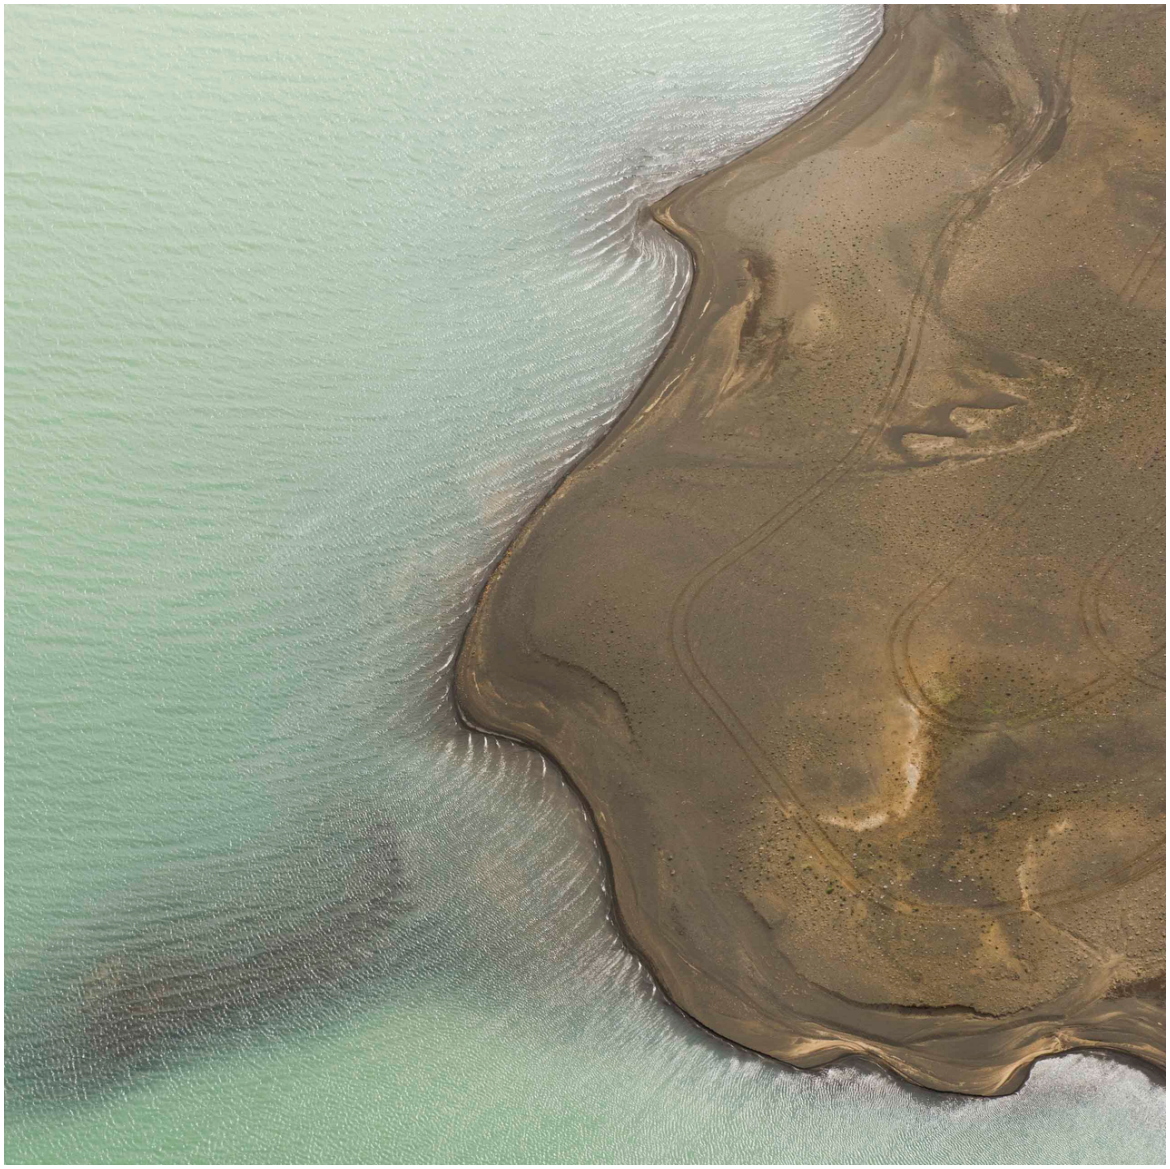

As part of her book project, she explored the different forms of water: fresh, salty, liquid, and frozen. This led to four fascinating series, one of which, SALT, was created in the Camargue, France. The seasons and the weather determine the colors of the landscapes seen from a helicopter. As usually happens when flying over the area, her imagination begins to create stories told by the shapes and structures that Mother Nature has crafted.

Matthias de Vogel | textile artist & designer

Matthias De Vogel was born and raised in The Netherlands and studied fashion design at Utrecht School of Arts.

After acquiring a master degree at the I.F.M in Paris he pursued a career in fashion working for several well known brands including Et Vous, Comptoir des Cotonniers, as well as the designers Isabel Marant and J.C de Castelbajac. This career period establishes his connection to couture and design in Paris.
After 15 years in Paris Matthias relocated to San Francisco, where he worked as Global Concept Designer for the iconic brand Levi Strauss.

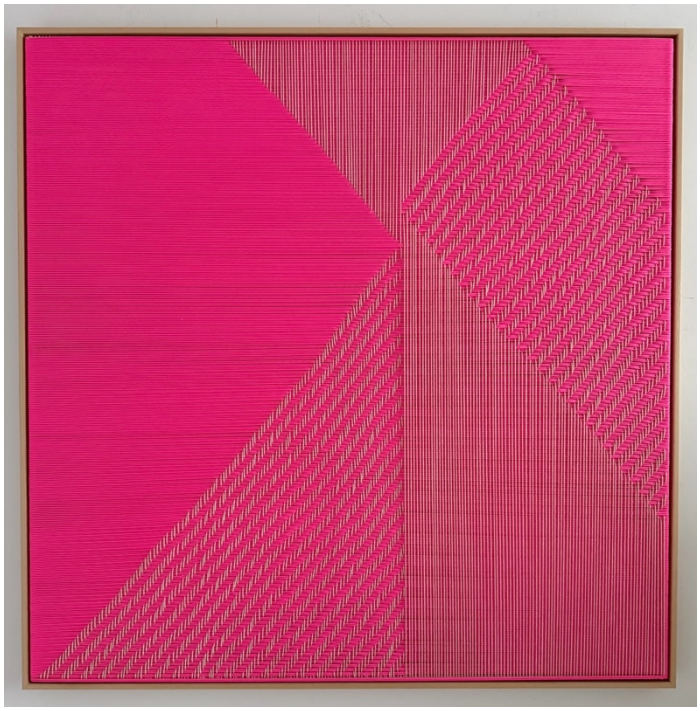

This role takes him around the world where he meets many inspiring people, providing the opportunity to work with these artisans and study their cultures, craft and approach to art.
His work is influenced by this research; specifically the meaning of color and use of prints and patterns from all of these different regions.
Returning to Amsterdam, Matthias De Vogel creates his textile lab and studio Fault Lines, founded in 2015. Here he experiments with traditional ideas of textile art and reinterpret this in a new way.

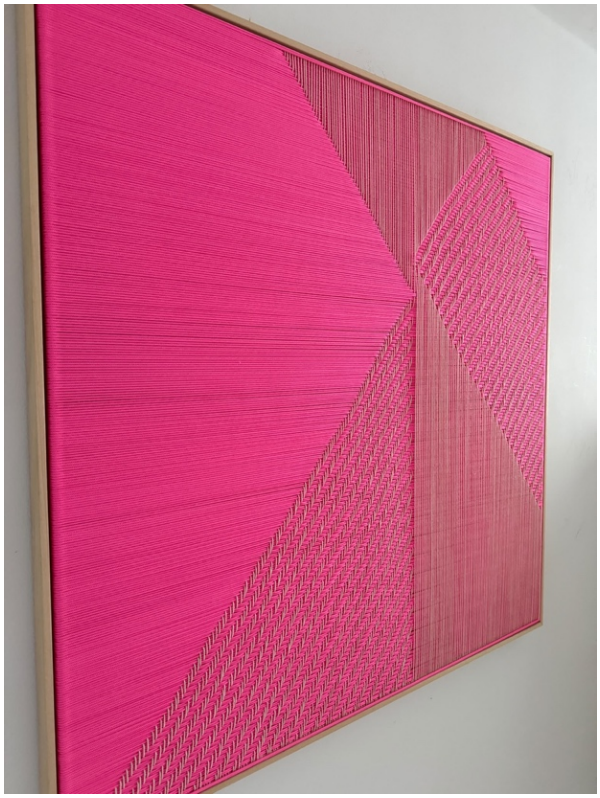

Matthias creates unique textile art within three essential design principles: educate, assimilate and innovate. He also works on commission regularly if you are looking for a specific design and or dimension.

Jules Duys | Painter

Jules Duys

Growing up in Lier, Belgium, creative expression was never something separate from daily life. Duys' father painted from his studio inside the family home, while his mother worked as a goldsmith. New artworks regularly appeared on a long white wall that ram through the house, becoming an ever-changing backdrop to daily life. Although deeply influenced by his artistic environment, Duys developed his own practice gradually and intuitively.
Painting evolved from a creative impulse into an essential part of how he understands and navigates the world.

Working primarily with oil paint, he approaches painting as a process of experimentation and discovery. Rather than working from a fixed concept, his paintings evolve through a continuous dialogue with the canvas, searching for balance between tension, contrast, and harmony.
Duys lives and works in Antwerp, Belgium

David Sagnier | Sculptor

David Sagnier (Barcelona, 9 November 1963) embodies a singular artistic trajectory, combining the rigour of a career as an executive in multinational corporations with a lifelong connection to artistic creation. His artistic education began at an early age within his own family, under the close and sustained guidance of his grandmother, an artist who played a fundamental role in shaping his artistic sensibility and understanding of form and material. This early and lasting mentorship laid the foundations of his artistic practice, nurtured by a family environment deeply connected to art and creative expression.

After leaving the corporate world, Sagnier devoted himself fully to his artistic vocation, developing his work between Paris and Barcelona. Working primarily with Corten steel, oxidation, light and the void, he pursues an essential visual language that distils complex ideas into simple forms. His practice brings together the sensitivity of drawing, an interest in the transformation of materials and a continuous search for forms that invite the viewer to look beyond the immediately visible.

The Genesis of the Gaze

It all begins in Cadaqués. Under this Mediterranean light, between the sea and the rocks, his artistic sensibility was shaped through contact with the organic and the mineral. This indissoluble bond with nature defines his approach to sculpture today: an act of humility.

While the artist shapes the material, he leaves it to nature—air, water and light—to complete the work, creating a living dialogue in which oxides reveal changing textures and shadows.

The DNA of the Stroke: The Complexity of the Simple

Sagnier's work is based on the concept of the "single stroke": a pure line that structures the void and translates the complexity of the world into essential forms. Whether working with Corten steel, paper or other media, his research strives for profound clarity. For him, sculpture is a bridge: a silent form of communication in which form suggests more than it shows, and silence ultimately speaks.

Space and Light

Having exhibited in Paris, Madrid and Barcelona, Sagnier is currently exploring the integration of light as an active material. His aim is to transform the surrounding space, allowing the "complexity of the simple" to unfold through the viewer's experience and inviting a more intimate and resonant contemplation.

Sagnier participated in many prestigious (inter)national exhibitions/art fairs including Grand Palais Paris, Villa Médicis Art Fair, Paris

Eline de Jonge | Painter

Eline de Jonge, painter, works in New York and Amsterdam. Graduate of HKU (Utrecht) and the Art Students League N.Y. Solo shows in New York, Shanghai, Mexico City, Geneva. (Inter)national art fairs like PAN Amsterdam, Art Miami Context, Art Basel Scope. In prestigious private and corporate collections like the Four Seasons hotels, AON, Loyens & Loeff, head court room Amsterdam and the Clinton Foundation. Works frequently on commission.

The Jonge's work speaks eloquently of a distinct fascination with the interaction between inhabitants of large cities and the intriguing ambiguities of cast shadows depicted in her New York series, but also Paris, Shanghai, London and other metropolises. Her focal point is always from above in order to remain a spectator.

In her work she is looking for balance between energy and contemplation, between movement and quietness. Athough the paintings often describe dynamic city scenes, they convey a remarkable sense of calmness. This tension is what is unique in De Jonge's work

She added a new series of Winter scene paintings Shadows on White including skiers in the Alpes seen from underneath the slopes looking up, showing perspective and then rhythm of movement.

New series: Shadows on Sand

New series painted in and inspired by observations on the coast of Cadaquès (Northern Spain) and Domburg (Netherlands).. They are painted on natural Belgian linen and layered with colors of Mediterranean skies and seawater and then covered with layers pasty white oil paint, still allowing some colors and linen to shine through on occasion. The paintings resonate the stark contrasts on very bright sunny days and the reflection of light on the water turning people into dark silhouettes and washing away most colors.

Peter Peereboom | Painter

Peter Peereboom graduated from the Royal Academy of the Arts in The Hague, many soloshows including at Musée Centre Pompidou Paris*, Prinsenhof Museum Delft, Zappion Athens Greece. His work is in many prestigious private corporate and royal collections and finest galleries around the world. Peereboom works in Paris and in Delft, The Netherlands.*

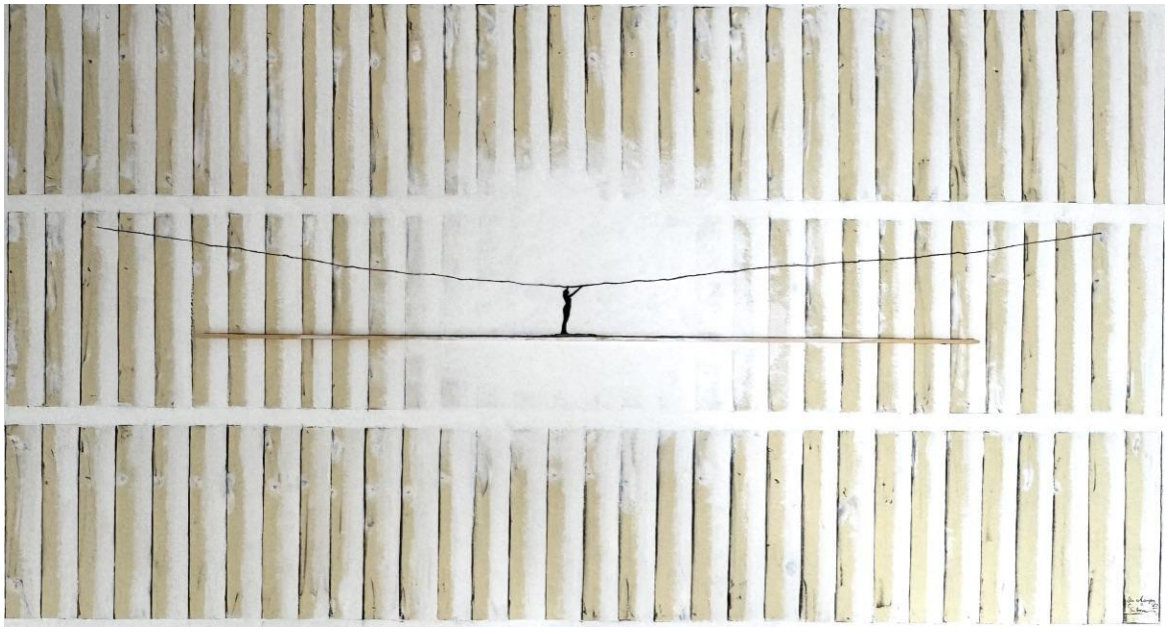

Photography is the starting point from which his compositions eventually find their form by adding materials such as paper, wood and paint. The female model carrying the branch is the central figure in his paintings. She is placed in landscapes, at seashores (les Femme et les Vagues – with horizontal stripes referring to the horizon) but also on dikes or depicted on ploughed fields, creating the Adagio Matinale series ("what will the day bring me" – with vertical stripes). These series bring up a more inner world in which the artist tries to translate what the photography alone cannot express - a feeling where "words" aren't pronounced yet – compositions in which silence rules.
Peereboom's work is in exclusive private and Royal art collections including George Harrison, Tom Hanks etc.
